It equips individuals with the knowledge and skills to analyze correctional systems, evaluate rehabilitation programs, understand the impact of punishment on deterrence, address social inequalities, and contribute to policy development and criminal justice reforms focused on the effective and humane treatment of offenders.

CO10 Forensic Science and Scientific Investigation of Crime

Studying forensic science and the scientific investigation of crime provides a comprehensive understanding of the principles, techniques, and challenges associated with the analysis of scientific evidence in criminal investigations. It equips individuals with the knowledge and skills to evaluate evidence, understand its strengths and limitations, contribute to the improvement of forensic practices, and promote the effective and fair use of scientific evidence in the criminal justice system.

CO11 Practical Examination*

In addition, all groups have practical examination where students are scored on three parameters- Classroom Teaching & Seminar, Practical Component (Legal Aid, Loopholes in existing laws and reports, Comparative study and its utility in context of India, Debates, Book Review or Group Discussion, etc.) and attendance. This activity encourages the students to enhance their presentation skills and provides a platform for exchanging ideas, opinions and perspectives.

Semester IV

CO12 Interdisciplinary Project

Interdisciplinary projects are compulsory for all groups in the final semester wherein perspectives of different disciplines are integrated to gain a more comprehensive understanding of the subject matter. It cultivates adaptability and flexibility in navigating diverse perspectives and adapting to new methodologies. Individuals gain the ability to adapt their legal knowledge and skills to different contexts, which is increasingly important in a rapidly evolving legal landscape.

CO13 Dissertation

The dissertation is an opportunity for students to demonstrate their ability to conduct independent research and contribute to the existing body of knowledge in their field. It requires students to employ various research methodologies, collect and analyze data, and draw meaningful conclusions. This process helps develop critical thinking, problem-solving, and research skills that are essential for future academic and professional endeavors.
